BROADCASTING STATIONS OF THE WORLD
ACCORDING TO SHORT WAVE FREQUENCY

August 1, 1945

SHORT WAVE BROADCASTING STATIONS OF THE WORLD,

ARRANGED BY FREQUENCY

INTRODUCTION

This list includes all short wave broadcasting stations which are known to be in operation or which may become active in the future. It does not include stations engaged in point-to-point relays of broadcast material. The frequencies shown are, wherever possible, the actual operating frequencies, which may differ in many cases from the announced or assigned frequencies.

The power shown is, wherever possible, the present operating power, which may differ from the licensed power. Many stations are operating with less than their licensed power, due to the present shortage of tubes and equipment.

Stations marked with an asterisk are inactive. These include: inactive frequencies of transmitters now operating on other frequencies; authorized stations not yet in operation (including projected stations and stations under construction); stations destroyed by warfare or off the air due to enemy occupation (many of these frequencies and call letters will probably be used again after the war); stations formerly audible but which have not been heard recently and therefore are believed to be inactive.
